Risk level

The presented risk index is based on the Key Information Document. It is a general risk index showing the level of risk assumed by a unit holder when investing in this product. The index may help assess the risk levels of a sub-fund as compared to investing in other products. The risk index consists of two parameters: market risk and credit risk. The index value may change. Even the lowest risk category does not mean that a given sub-fund is risk-free. The index does not include, among others: liquidity risk, currency risk, business partner risk, operational risk, sustainability risk or financial technique risk. A detailed description of risks associated with investing in a given sub-fund may be found in the Prospectus available on www.generali-investments.pl

Definitions

Standard deviation – this ratio shows how risky the given fund is. The higher the ratio, the more volatile the price of a fund unit. This ratio is used to compare the risk of funds with a similar profile (e.g. equity funds).

Sharpe's ratio – this ratio shows the profitability of risk borne by the fund compared to safe investments (e.g. treasury bonds). The higher the Sharpe's ratio, the lower the risk at which the return of the fund is generated compared to safe investments.

By investing in a Subfund, the unitholder purchases units and not the underlying assets invested in by the Subfund. No investment is risk-free. Unitholders need to be ready for a possible decrease in or loss of money invested. The individual return on investment is not the same as the Subfund's investment performance and depends on the value of the unit at the time of its sale and repurchase by the Subfund, as well as on handling fees and taxes applicable to the income earned on the investment. Taxes depend on the client's situation and may change in the future.

The presented returns are historic. Neither the Company nor the investment fund guarantees that investment goals or similar future results will be achieved.

In the case of sub-funds for which a template has been set to assess the effectiveness of investments in participation units, reflecting the behaviour of market variables that
